

When all the servo wiring ports are in the same straight line, it means the installation of robotic hands are correct.